

1. Why are there war graves in Freetown?

During the World Wars, Sierra Leone was the base for recruiting and training men for the armed forces. The ports and harbours along the coast were of great value to convoys bound for the Middle East, India, South Africa and South America. By the end of 1942, coastal defence artillery had been installed and manned in all the principal West African ports. Freetown became an important naval base.

4. Discover more about the service of those buried at Freetown (King Tom) Cemetery

4.1 Each headstone in the cemetery tells a different story.

As you explore the cemetery see what you can learn from the headstones. See if you can find the following;

- 1. Who is the youngest soldier you can find?
- 2. Who is the oldest soldier you can find?
- 3. How many different countries did they come from?

4.3 As you explore the cemetery, look at the different badges on the headstones. These will give you a clue as to the role the person had, and maybe where they came from. As you find each badge, write down the name of the person who served with that unit, or service in the box next to the badge.

4.2 There is just one headstone which has this badge engraved on. Who were they and what was their role?

The West African Frontier Force was an infantry unit which recruited in Gambia, Ghana, Nigeria and Sierra Leone.

The Royal Canadian Navy served protecting convoys during the Battle of the Atlantic from 1940-1945.

The Merchant Navy was the largest in the world. It recruited people from all over the globe to serve on the ships.

The King's African Rifles was an infantry unit. It recruited in Kenya, Malawi, Somalia, Tanzania and Uganda.

South African units served in Africa and Europe during the First World War. Can you find the one South African soldier buried here?

The Australian Imperial Force fought in Europe and the Middle East. Can you find the Australian captain who died in 1917?
