

1. Why are there war graves on the Somme?

During the First World War, much fighting took place across this region. There was fighting here throughout 1914-1917, and again in 1918. The British Army arrived on the Somme in 1915, taking over the sector from the French Army. It was here that the Battle of Somme was fought between July and November 1916. The cemeteries and memorials across the region reflect that fighting; the small cemeteries made during trench warfare where soldiers buried their mates, or the large post-war created cemeteries built to bury those killed in battle. The memorials built here remember the 'missing' – those with no known grave.

4. Discover more about the service of those buried at Delville Wood Cemetery

4.1 Each headstone in the cemetery tells a different story.

As you explore the cemetery see what you can learn from the headstones. See if you can find the following;

1. Who is the youngest soldier you can find?
2. Who is the oldest soldier you can find?
3. How many different countries did they come from, based on the information on the headstones.

4.3 As you explore the cemetery, look at the different badges on the headstones. These will give you a clue as to the role the person had and maybe where they came from. As you find each badge, write down the name of the person who served with that unit in the box next to the badge.

4.2 There is just one grave with this medal on here. It is the Victoria Cross. Can you find it in Plot 4? Who was this person and what rank did they have?

Soldiers from South Africa fought in many campaigns in East and South West Africa and on the Western Front including Delville Wood.

More than 650,000 people served in the Canadian forces in the First World War. They fought in the Middle East, in Greece and on the Western Front. (Plot 2)

More than 100,000 troops, including native Māori's left New Zealand for service overseas in Samoa, Gallipoli, the Middle East, Belgium and France. (Plot 5)

More than 430,000 people enlisted into the Australian forces in the First World War. They fought in the Middle East, in Greece and on the Western Front. (Plot 12)

Ernest Bindoff was killed alongside his twin brother. He is buried in Plot 17. What regiment was he serving with and on what date did he die?

Who is the 16-year-old who served with the Royal Dublin Fusiliers buried in Plot 21?
